

Monthly Market Review (April 2024)

NEWS HEADLINES

- MTN Ghana stock surges to record high at GH¢1.75; The Telecommunication giant posted substantial growth in service revenue, with a notable 32.4% increase to GH¢3.8 billion from GH¢2.9 billion in 2023 for first quarter of 2024. This growth was primarily driven by robust performances in data services, Mobile Money (MoMo), and voice communications. (GSE)
- The Social Security and National Insurance Trust (SSNIT) issues rejoinder on depleting reserves; SSNIT has dismissed reports suggesting that it will be unable to pay benefits by 2036, stating that it presently receives contributions and has enough funds to meet accruing benefits due members. This follows a report by the International Labour Organisation (ILO) suggesting that SSNIT reserves may reach zero (0) by 2036. (SSNIT)
- Cedi hits GH¢13.66 to a dollar; year-to-date loss reaches 14.31% as at end-April; The depreciation of the cedi to the dollar continued unabated as the local currency hit GH¢13.66 to the American greenback. This is coming despite the Bank of Ghana selling $20 million to the Bulk Oil Distribution Companies (BDCs) in the 51st auction. (Bloomberg)

KEY MACROECONOMIC INDICATORS

 Annual consumer inflation accelerated to a four-month high of 25.8% in March 2024, up from 23.2% in the prior month. The sharper rise in overall inflation was mainly due to a depreciating currency, leading to higher costs for imported goods.

INVESTING IN OFFSHORE SECURITIES

 Investing offshore typically refers to investing in assets or financial instruments issued and traded outside of one's home country. For someone living in Ghana, investing offshore could involve putting money into stocks, Government bills or bonds, mutual funds, real estate, or other investment vehicles that are based in foreign countries.

The Decision to Invest Offshore

- The key objective for investing offshore is to have access to international or global asset classes that are highly rated, such as sovereign debt of US and European countries;
- Also, to gain access to markets with greater stability, mature companies that have a tried and tested record, and economies that underpin a large proportion of the wealth of the global economy;
- Ultimately, these low risks investments will seek to improve the rating of your portfolio and therefore reduce risk of default or low performance.

Before investing offshore, consider factors such as regulatory requirements, tax implications, currency risk, political stability, legal frameworks, economic conditions, market liquidity, creditworthiness, geopolitical factors, and operational procedures like transaction costs. Additionally, assess potential returns, diversification benefits, and seek professional advice to make informed decisions.

There are several reasons why it may be beneficial to invest offshore:

Diversification: Allows portfolio diversification across different countries and currencies, reducing the risk associated with having all your investments concentrated in one country or region.

Access to Opportunities: Offshore investments may offer access to investment opportunities that are not available domestically, such as emerging markets, specific industries, or niche sectors.

Currency Hedge: Holding assets denominated in different currencies can provide a hedge against currency risk and help protect the value of your investments if your home currency depreciates.

How to invest Offshore:

Speak to your fund manager to ascertain the best instruments and the best option in investing offshore.
